"If you have a child of two or three, or can borrow one, let her give you beginning lessons in looking. It takes just a few minutes. Ask the child to come home from the front of the house to the back and closely observe her small journey. It will be full of pauses, circling, touching, and picking up in order to smell, shake, taste, rub, and scrape. The child's eyes own't leave the ground, and every piece of paper, every scrap, every object along the way will be a new discovery.

It does not matter if this is familiar territory- the same house, the same rug and chair. To the child, the journey of this particular day, with its special light and sound, has never been made before. So the child treats the situation with open curiosity and attention that it deserves.

The child is quite right.
